RICHMOND.

We are yet only in receipt of such accounts of the battles, movements and counter-maneuvres before Richmond as have got before the public through newspaper enterprise, the national government having been strangely unable or unwilling, for some occult reason, to relieve the anxiety under which everybody has been laboring. We can scarcely say that we understand all of what we print, and even what we do understand bears such a relation to the positions of our army as to render it painfully uncertain whether we shall be allowed to comment upon it sufficiently to explain to our readers intelligibly what has been done.

It seems tolerably clear that General McClellan's lines were entirely too much extended. Had he been at the city itself, his force was sufficient to effect a complete investment; but at the distance where he encountered the rebel fortifications and armies, the work of investment was impracticable. A great many persons wondered why all our forces were not long ago south of the Chickahominy river; but it now appears that one wing of the army had to be kept north of it to prevent the enemy's outflanking us. Had this wing formed south of the river, it would have had in its front a numerous rebel army, behind strong fortifications, and in the rear a rapid and dangerous river.

But the nature of the ground would not permit of our main attack being made from that direction, and consequently McClellan was pushing his other wing south, toward the James river. This steady progress, however, caused such a constant extension of our lines, that it became necessary to change front and withdraw the extreme right, in order to bring our forces more together, and secure a more practicable approach to Richmond. The orders for this movement appear to have been known among the army officers more than a week ago; and preparations had been made for it.

Meantime, the enemy becoming aware of the weakening of our lines by their too great extension, planned and executed one of their sudden and force attack in force upon our extreme right. Gaining in great array under Lee and Jackson, they crossed the Chickahominy by the railroad bridge, and precipitated themselves upon McClellan's division, our sturdy Pennsylvania reserves, who fought like heroes hour after hour, until ordered to retire, which they did in good order.

That attack hastened but did not cause the change of front which McClellan had previously determined on. Fitz John Porter's division, therefore, as well as McClellan's left flank, the enemy advancing over the abandoned ground as though they had gained something, when by so doing they were merely concentrating their force north of the Chickahominy, while McClellan, pursuing his plans, was marching his whole army southward and taking up a new base of operations on the James river, with his lines nearer to Richmond.

These changes have cost us heavy, but we have encountered no reverses. On the James river McClellan is within reach of the gunboats. In this view of affairs some of our previous operations must have been merely intended to deceive the enemy. Such is our present judgment.

Note.—The shore was put in type before the receipt of the disastrous news of this morning.

States in Spanish Ports.—We have received late news from the Mediterranean squadron. A correspondence has been in progress for some time between the Spanish authorities, relative to the escape from the port of Cadix of two vessels suspected of engaging in the slave trade. The vessels were named the Clarion and Palmona, and were detained at Cadix at the request of the American Consul.

One of them, however, got out under cover of night, and from some circumstances which attended her clandestine departure, our representatives deemed themselves justified in implicating the authorities. A detachment of sailors and marines belonging to the United States squadron, now at St. Louis, thereupon asked the Spanish authorities to permit them to pursue the Clarion and Palmona, which were in the possession of the Spanish government. Matters were in this unsettled state when our correspondent closed his letter; and until instructions arrived from Mr. Seward no one knew what course events would take.—See News of 1st.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS.

FOURTH OF JULY.—We publish this afternoon, by authority of Chief Marshal W. J. Swinburne, a revised programme of the "order of arrangements" to be observed in this city on the Anniversary of our National Independence. There seems to be a disposition on the part of our community to commemorate the coming holiday with a more than usual observance, and in that view the Committee of the City Council have used the funds appropriated with much discrimination. Should the day be fine, and more than all, should we be in receipt of cheering news from the Army before Richmond, we may expect a right jubilant time both in and out of doors. The order of exercises to take place at the North Baptist Church are of no ordinary kind.

We are to have an Oration from Bishop Clarke, and a Poem from Hon. W. J. Rodman both of which gentlemen well known talents will be brought out to the best advantage, and we can well congratulate our fellow townsmen upon the choice of the Committee in this respect and the kindness shown to old Newport by these able and gifted men, who undoubtedly give us much greater opportunities of self-education and appreciation for their love of our good old City. Let us hope that Richmond is captured and all is right.

Newport Donations Received Letter—From Miss Wormley.

A letter has been received from Miss Wormley, now acting with the Sanitary Commission attached to the Army of the Potomac, giving an account of the arrival of the cases and gifts recently forwarded from Newport, with comments for the wounded. It will be seen that they reached their destination on Friday the 27th, at the moment that they were the most acceptable; and it is to be hoped that the hearts of the generous donors will be cheered by knowing promptly how much alleviation to pain and misery their generous gifts already afford.

After speaking of the retirement from the White House as a strategic movement, successfully accomplished, and not unexpected, by those best informed, before it took place, she says:

June 28th, 1862. Now for my precious boxes. They came last night. The Surgeon General had just telegraphed to Mr. Olmsted for Hospital supplies for the wounded. Our supply boat had been seized to tow something down, but the other boats of the Commission had nearly everything on board except brandy. I was delighted to have the cases to send, they went to the battle ground in the last train from the White House that got safely through; together with the boxes of miscellaneous goods; in short everything except the two cases marked "private." Please let all those generous friends know that what they sent coming as it did perhaps doubly blessed. If you could but form an idea of what such things are to the poor fellows! No one I am sure, has the least idea of it unless they see it. I think these things now sent from Newport will be unusually precious. These poor wounded are cut off from getting down to our care where they could have comfort in sufficiency. They are lying parched and agonized in the immediate rear of the army, subject to every privation. I know all our dear friends in Newport will be glad to think that their cases have reached them, together with some others from the Sanitary Commission, and that by this time they have given inexpressible comfort to many a sufferer.

Thank my kind Mr. L., for all his care. He tells me of the noble, generous gifts of the churches. I am astonished, God knows how the suffering bless those who give them. I hear much, but God bless all.

Good bye, try to tell everybody in Newport how much I thank them. My heart glows to hear what people say here of Rhode Island.

THE REDWOOD HOUSE.—Our readers are already aware that the Colony of the Belle Vue House has been leased by Mr. Chas. J. Blyden, formerly of the Atlantic. Mr. Blyden is admirably adapted to act the part of "mine host" and having given his new quarters the most select names he intends to make its selection a necessity by those who wish to enjoy the luxuries of the most approved viands, and the choicest beverages. We last evening enjoyed the company of several friends, at the Redwood and for the first time became thoroughly aware of the cause of Mr. Blyden's widely spread popularity, and the extreme neatness and luxuriance of his establishment. Everything presented an air of comfort, the waiters thoroughly understood their business and the where-withal for the former man was provided to the extreme satisfaction of all present. We congratulate our citizens that the great desideratum for enjoyment of this kind has at last been reached in our city, and that we are indebted for it to no vagabond from Paris, but to a Newport man.

CLARK'S INDELBLE PENCIL.—This is the most contented and desirable article in the market for marking clothing. It contains all the indelible qualities, but does away with the inconvenience and trouble of working with the different preparations of ink, it being so simple that it can be used by any one who can write with an ordinary pencil. For sale in this city by T. A. Spencer 86 Thames Street.

The Need of Men.

The following from the Prov. Press will be read, with interest, expressing, as it does to all probability the view of our chief magistrate, Gov. Sprague in the present crisis of affairs.

"The President's call for three hundred thousand additional troops does not argue that the Government has any information of a reverse to our arms in front of Richmond, as many are swift to interpret it. It has for some time been evident that the universal conscription act was recruiting the rebel armies with men of a more determined stamp than those volunteers who have before quailed at the gleaming of Northern steel. At every point the rebels are exhibiting renewed strength and energy, and their very desperation lends vigor to their efforts and recklessness to their courage."

"In the West, particularly, is every military situation unpromising, as every car-ful reader must be convinced. And in South Carolina we are compelled to submit to the humiliation of a withdrawal from before Charleston, that place of all others where the power of the Union should be ever present, vigilant and manning."

"In this aspect of affairs it is gratifying to know that Rhode Island has not waited for renewed calls upon her patriotism.—Notwithstanding her forces in the field have been largely in excess of her quota, she has been constantly engaged in raising, equipping and forwarding additional troops, until we apprehend that when the existing regiment are full, our due proportion of the new levy will be found "armed and equipped as the law directs," while thousands of loyal men will stand ready to respond to any further call that may be deemed necessary for the prompt suppression of the rebellion. We cannot believe that the patriots of the North will assent to a prolonged continuance of this struggle, if only men and means are needful to bring it to a speedy and satisfactory termination.

By all means let us act promptly in filling up the regiments now raising or already in the service. Our State must maintain her noble position in the advance of the Union hosts. The men that the President calls for are wanted now, and every day's delay adds to the embarrassment of the situation and the prolongation of the war. It is idle to urge that the War Department has not properly managed the matter of enlisting and recruiting the Union army. The right movement is taken now. Let every friend of his country individually push on the column."

WAR NEWS.

DOUBTFUL FUMOR OF THE CAPTURE OF RICHMOND.

St. Louis, July 2.—The Democrat has a special dispatch from Memphis 30th, which says advice from Richmond this morning state that the rebel troops had been driven from that city. No particulars.

COLLECTION OF THE NATIONAL TAX.

PRESIDENTIAL PROCLAMATION.

Washington, July 2.—The President, in accordance with the provisions of the recent act for the collection of direct taxes in the insurrectionary districts of the United States has issued a proclamation declaring in what States and parts of States insurrection exists, viz: South Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia, excepting from the last certain named Western counties, those now being in insurrection and rebellion, and by reason thereof the civil authority of the United States is obstructed.

RELEASE OF MR. FULTON.

New York, July 2.—A dispatch received here states that an order has been issued for the release from Fort Mifflin of C. C. Fulton, Esq. who was so outrageously incarcerated by some officials for telegraphing a simple statement for the information of editors on Sunday last. The untimely expression of execration and disgust by the people at this unwarranted proceeding against one who has always been an unflinching champion of our Union in Baltimore undoubtedly led to his prompt release.

IMPORTANT BILLS SIGNED.

Washington, July 2.—The President has approved and signed two Pacific Railroad and internal tax bills.

MR. FULTON.

Baltimore, July 2.—Mr. C. C. Fulton was released from Fort Mifflin at 10 o'clock last night, and arrived home at one o'clock this morning, having been unconditionally released, and, unduly by the President, who probably knew nothing of the affair until he saw it in the newspapers. Several sympathizers were very jubilant here at his incarceration, and the satisfaction and joy of all Unionists here to-day at his unconditional release is equalled only by the chagrin of the quasi rebels.

From the Rhode Island Ninth and Tenth.

A private letter, dated at "Camp at Fairfax Seminary, June 30th," states that the Ninth Regiment had just left that point for Washington to garrison some of the Forts, and that the Tenth was then about to move for the same destination and duty near its old encampment. The troops in the forts were ordered off, it was supposed, to join McClellan. The 32d Massachusetts left the Seminary Monday morning, probably for the Peninsula. The camp at Fairfax Seminary was three miles from Museum's Hill and two from Cloud's Mills. Prov. Press.

Burnside to Support McClellan.

The New York Post makes the following important statement:

"A part of McClellan's success will be controlled by the movements of Burnside, who, it is now generally shown, has been ordered to support him by rapid movements from the South. Where he is it would not be proper to state if we could, but we may say without imprudence that the latest intelligence received from him most assuredly that he was marching as far as he could in the right direction. Should this prove correct, we may at any moment hear of the arrival of Burnside, with his tried and veteran forces, at a place where his aid will be very effective."
